

Rainforest Festival's
Ephemeral Art Show
 Sept. 11-13, 2020

Hungry Point - North Nordic

1. Flora by Heidi Lee

"I was inspired by my Grama who used to listen to her intuition and come here to wait for her husband and sons to come home from fishing. After having her lunch they would usually show up. This was before radios!"

Outlook Park

2. A Sorta Fairytale by Molly and Libby Taiber

Honoring the human world woven into nature. Appreciation for the embrace we receive from nature that is consistently there for us if we ask.

3. Bird Rock and Net Rock by Chris Weiss

Bird Rock– decorated with corn husks and hand-made corn husk cordage and feathers. Net Rock – lichen collar, with hand-made canary reed grass cordage looped into a net skirt Rocks were gathered from the park beach and now have been returned.

4. Color Wheelin' by Ashley, Shane, Rosie and Finny Lohr

Glass, leaves, shells and kelp were collected at Whale Observatory to create a radial design in the sand. Inspiration: "Rivers and Tides" film by Andy Goldsworthy.

5. Landscape by Mother Nature

Remember to enjoy the art nature gifts us with everyday!

Hungry Point Trail and Ballfields

6. Dewcatchers by Sunny Rice

In celebration of the "muskeg magic" that occurs when the morning moisture reveals the skills of spiders.

7. Emergence by Christina Sargent

Highlighting the lifecycle of dragonflies. Check out the bushes for the adult form and the muskeg holes to spot the water-dwelling nymph.

8. KinderSkog Creations

Look around in the alder thicket here. You might find a circle of shells, some interestingly arranged feathers, a swirl of leaves, and other signs that the KinderSkog kids have been here creating nature art.

Sandy Beach and Ravens Roost Trail

9. Transitions by Christina Sargent

Mandala inspired by the fall colors and the changing of the seasons.

10. Seuss's Whimsy by Hillary Hunter

Wrapped in lichen this tree turns into a creation that would be right at home in a Seuss book.

11. Woven by Pia O'Riley

Driftwood, rock, and moss woven into a natural sculpture. Get close up and look inside to appreciate all the elements.

12. Alaska Rainforest Blanket by Karen Dillman and Marilyn Meucci

Piece is a composition of plant, animal and fungal life from the garden, forest and the sea. Colors range from black to white, highlighting the diversity of color and hue of our natural world.
